The Menger Hotel

Located adjacent to the Alamo, the original Menger Hotel-since enlarged-was built on the site of Menger's brewery, the first brewery in Texas. Opening on February 1, 1859, "the finest hotel west of the Mississippi River" was host to such notables as Sam Houston, Generals Lee and Grant, and Presidents McKinley, Taft and Eisenhower. Teddy Roosevelt recruited the Rough Riders in the Menger Bar. This handsome structure boasts original wrought-iron balconies and details. Many rooms retain the furniture, art and accessories from the hotels earlier days, including four-poster beds, velvet-covered Victorian sofas and chairs, marble-topped tables and period wall coverings.

Amenities: 316 guest rooms and suites, many overlooking The Alamo, pool or Alamo Plaza. Valet parking, in-room movies, largest swimming pool in the downtown area, fitness center. Spa services available with massage therapy, sauna and steam room.

Dining: Colonial Dining Room serves Traditional and Southwestern dishes; optional garden seating. The Menger Bar is a reproduction of the House of Lords' Pub.

Meetings: Numerous settings include a Ballroom that accommodates up to 750, tropical garden, pool area.

Location: Located next to the Alamo, next door to the Rivercenter Mall and one block from the famous Riverwalk. Eight miles from San Antonio International Airport, 2 blocks from S.A. Convention Center.

Single: $96.00 Double: $106.00
